About the editors

DIANA J. MASON, PhD, RN, FAAN, is Senior Policy Service Professor at the Center for Health Policy and Media Engagement, George Washington University School of Nursing; and Professor Emeritus, Hunter-Bellevue School of Nursing, City University of New York. She is the Deputy Program Director for the International Council of Nurses' Global Nursing Leadership Institute, which prepares nurse leaders around the world to shape global, regional, and national policies to improve the health of populations. She is a past President of the American Academy of Nursing, former Editor-in-Chief of the American Journal of Nursing, and producer and moderator of a community radio program on health and health policy since 1985. She has served as the only health professional on the National Advisory Committee for Kaiser Health News since its inception in 2009. She blogs on policy for HealthCetera and JAMA News Forum. Dr. Mason is the principal investigator on a replication of the 1998 Woodhull Study on Nurses and the Media published in 2018 in the Journal of Nursing Scholarship and an additional analysis of journalists' experiences with using nurses as sources in health news stories published in the American Journal of Nursing.

Dr. Mason is a member of the Board of Directors of the Primary Care Development Corporation, a nonprofit Community Development Financial Institution focused on building the nation's capacity for primary care; and of Public Health Solutions, New York City's largest public health organization that focuses on improving the health of vulnerable families. She chairs the National Advisory Board of the Center for Health and Social Care Integration at Rush University Medical Center and is Facilitator and Co-Chair of the Catskills Addiction Coalition. She served as a member of the National Academies of Science, Engineering and Medicine Committee for the report on Integrating Social Needs Care into the Delivery of Health Care to Improve the Nation's Health, and she co-chaired the Josiah Macy Foundation invitational conference and report on Registered Nurses: Partners in Transforming Primary Care.

The recipient of numerous awards for leadership, dissemination of science, writing, education, policy, and advocacy, Dr. Mason is a fellow of the American Academy of Nursing and the New York Academy of Medicine, from which she received the Academy Medal for Distinguished Contributions in Health Policy in 2019. She received a BSN from West Virginia University, an MSN from St. Louis University, a PhD from New York University, an honorary Doctorate of Science from West Virginia University, and an honorary doctorate of humane letters from Long Island University.

ELIZABETH DICKSON, PhD, RN, is an Assistant Professor at the University of New Mexico, College of Nursing in Albuquerque, New Mexico and a fellow of the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Nursing and Health Policy Collaborative. Dr. Dickson's public health experience spans local, county, state, and federal public health agencies, with foci on maternal-child health, childhood immunizations, tuberculosis management, STD/HIV prevention, family planning, and school health programs in California, Arizona, and New Mexico.

Dr. Dickson's program of research focuses on the intersection of adolescent health, health education, school health and education policy, and school nursing. She serves on the Board of Directors for the New Mexico Alliance for School Based Health Care and multiple state and local community advisory boards for projects focused on improving LGBTQ adolescent health and health education. Dr. Dickson testified before legislative health and education committees regarding her research on sexual health education in secondary schools. Her research collaboration includes the University of New Mexico Center for Participatory Research, where she serves as co-investigator for NIH/NINR-supported research exploring community-based participatory research within academic and community partnerships.

Dr. Dickson received a BS in business management from California State University, Sacramento, an MSN from Samuel Merritt College, Oakland, California, and a PhD in nursing from the University of New Mexico.

MONICA R. McLEMORE, PhD, MPH, RN, FAAN is an associate professor in the Family Health Care Nursing Department, a research scientist with Advancing New Standards in Reproductive Health, and a member of the Bixby Center for Global Reproductive Health. Her program of research is focused on understanding reproductive health and justice. She has published 49 peer-reviewed articles, op-eds, and commentaries, and her research has been cited in the Huffington Post, Lavender Health, two amicus briefs to the Supreme Court of the United States, and a National Academies of Science, Engineering, and Medicine report. Her work has appeared in publications such as Dame magazine, Politico, and ProPublica/NPR, and she made a voice appearance in Terrance Nance's HBO series Random Acts of Flyness. She is an elected member of the governing council for Sexual and Reproductive Health (SRH) section of the American Public Health Association and became chair-elect of the SRH section at the 2018 annual meeting. She is a recipient of the 2015 teaching award from the American College of Nurse Midwives and one of 10 Culture of Health, Breakthrough Leaders in Nursing—a program of the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, AARP, and the Center to Champion Nursing in America. She currently serves on the board of Centering Health Care International. In 2018 Dr. McLemore received the Person of the Year Award from the Abortion Care Network, and she was inducted as a fellow of the American Academy of Nursing in 2019.

G. ADRIANA PEREZ, PhD, RN, CRNP, ANP-BC, FAAN, FGSA, is an Assistant Professor of Nursing and Senior Fellow at the Leonard Davis Institute of Health Economics at the University of Pennsylvania, School of Nursing. Her program of research focuses on the development and testing of theory-based community interventions to promote cardiovascular health and cognitive health in older Latinos. Current studies are funded by the National Institutes of Health/National Institute of Nursing Research Supplement to Promote Diversity in Health Related Research Program and the Penn Center for Improving Care Delivery for the Aging, National Institute on Aging. She was selected as a Congressional/Health and Aging Policy Fellow (2011-2013) supported by the Atlantic Philanthropies and Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Dr. Perez is a Fellow of the American Academy of Nursing and the Gerontological Society of America (GSA). She has served as Chair of the Academy's Expert Panel on Aging; Chair of the Public Policy Committee for the National Association of Hispanic Nurses; member of the UnitedHealth Group External Clinician Advisory Board; and appointed board member for the American Organization of Nurse Leaders. Dr. Perez received the GSA 2018 Senior Service America, Senior Scholar Award for Research Related to Disadvantaged Older Adults. She is a board-certified Adult Nurse Practitioner at Mercy

LIFE, providing community-based long-term care for diverse, frail elders who reside in North Philadelphia.

Dr. Perez grew up in Yuma, Arizona, near the United States–Mexico border. She received her BSN, MS Adult Nurse Practitioner, and PhD from Arizona State University, College of Nursing & Health Innovation. She received the Patricia G. Archbold Predoctoral Scholarship and Claire M. Fagin Postdoctoral Fellowship from the John A. Hartford Foundation, National Hartford Center for Gerontological Nursing Excellence.
